

RISK WARNING

This document serves as a Risk Warning and aims to inform the Client about potential risks associated with conducting operations in financial markets, as well as the possibility of incurring financial losses. The list of risks described herein is not exhaustive, as various situations may arise during the execution of these operations.

1. All provided information, including opinions, news reviews, analytical articles, price data, and more, is only market commentary and not investment advice. Trading Contracts for Difference (CFDs) carries high risks and may not be suitable for all investors. Traders should ensure they understand all associated financial and legal aspects and are prepared to accept the risk of potential losses. Consulting an independent specialist is recommended if necessary.
2. Operations in international financial markets imply that any fluctuation in the prices of underlying assets may significantly affect the Client's trading account balance due to the use of leverage. If the market moves against the Client's position, they may face losses equal to or exceeding the funds in their trading account. The Client bears full responsibility for assessing risks, managing capital, and selecting a trading strategy.
3. Many trading instruments exhibit significant intraday price fluctuations, which may result in both profits and losses from operations. During periods of high volatility, reduced liquidity, or other significant market condition changes causing price swings of more than 5% over a short period, the Company reserves the right to fix the Client's financial result at a price deviating no more than 5% from the initial price change.
4. The Client assumes the risks of financial losses due to failures of informational, communication, and electronic systems used for operations execution.
5. The Client acknowledges that under non-standard market conditions, the processing of their orders and trades may take longer.

6. The Client assumes the risks of financial losses caused by force majeure circumstances, including but not limited to: strikes, riots, terrorism, wars, natural disasters, accidents, fires, floods, storms, hurricanes, power outages, and software failures, leading to market destabilization.
7. When engaging in high-risk operations, the Client must consider that the possibilities of both positive and negative deviations of actual results from expected ones always exist and depend on multiple factors.
8. Considering the above, the Company strongly recommends that the Client carefully evaluate whether the risks associated with operations in international financial markets align with their financial goals and capabilities.
9. The purpose of this Warning is not to discourage the Client from participating in operations in international financial markets but to assist in understanding the associated risks and making an informed decision regarding the strategy of interaction with the Company within the framework of the concluded agreement.